

A DESK DELUXE

Youngsters doing business at the Albany children's library transact it across a luxurious looking desk, given to the library by the Albany Friends of the Library organization. The $300 addition to the library equipment is being given a trial by diminutive Patricia Wendel, 7, whose uncle, Gerald L. Wendel, built the desk at the Edwards Planing mill cabinet shop, where he is employed. Another youthful reader, Rickie Peters, pauses to watch the book dispensing process. Patricia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Wendel, 2135 S. Geary St. and Rickie is the son of Mrs. Beverly Peters, 423 Calapooia St. They are being served by Mrs. Lulu Olson (seated) children's librarian. No less interested are (from left) Mrs. James W. Jenks, Jr., president of the Friends of the Library, Roy Collins, member of the Albany Public Library board and Mrs. Florence Perkey, city librarian.
